A highly versatile, creative editor and filmmaker who specialises in producing gripping, immersive work that engages the audience on a gut level, whether they're watching on a phone, flatscreen or the silver screen. Through over a decade of frontline experience in all aspects of the production process, I have gained a keen understanding of the roles and needs of everyone in the production team, and how to focus my work as an editor to ensure that those needs - and those of the clients, broadcasters and audience - are met and content delivered to the very highest standards.
